

- 1) What does the word "mutable" mean.

- 2) What does A. mean when he says that God's existence is "simple and indivisible?"

- 3) As regards ethics, A. says that the Greeks erred by looking for the ultimate human good in the wrong places. Where did they look? Where should they have looked?

- 4) What sources does A. suggest for Plato's insights

- 5) Throughout chapters 13-26 A. points out the logical shortcomings of the Platonists' views about worshipping pagan gods. Why does A. judge that it is right "to reason a man a recreant to his Creator when he hands himself over to a creation of his own hands?"

- 6) State two ways in which, according to A., the cult of Christian martyrs differs from the cult of pagan ancestor worship.

I have read Book VIII

I have not read Book VIII

Signature